Men's School Luncheon Ocean Beach School Well Attended Has Host of Visitors

As a feature of the opening week celebration at Ocean Beach school the men's luncheon given Wednesday noon was a very interesting event. Thirty-six men were served dinner in the school cafeteria, being waited upon by especially capable young girls of the school. The dinner had been arranged by Dick Barbour, principal of the school, and the invitation extended to any men citizens of the beach who were interested.

Jay D. Conner, director of elementary education of the San Diego City schools, was the day's program chairman. The kindergarten orchestra of 22 pieces and the conductor, under supervision of Miss Carol Eaton, gave three selections, Parade of the Wooden Soldier, London Bridge, and the Canary Dance. Miss Barnes L3 class then sang four songs followed by two folk dances by Mrs. Karl's H1-L1 children. Miss Van Horn's high second grade offered the story "Umbrellas" in which Darleen Frieze was an especially charming character, delivering her story of the origination of umbrellas in a most capable manner.

Dr. E. L. Hardy, president of the San Diego State College, was main speaker with his subject "What's Next?" He commenced by saying any child should consider it his good fortune to be a pupil in Ocean Beach elementary school, now one of the most modern from every standpoint, in the county or state, with a highly efficient staff of teachers and principal. Dr. Hardy gave statistics showing the lessening in child mortality, the increase in divorce and the lack of good home life, he believed this community extremely fortunate to be made up largely of individual cottages and homes where children are receiving a better environment than in the more crowded life of city apartments.

The speaker also went into the trend of wealth, ownership of stock, the increase in patents granted, showing distinctly the progress of the industrial age. While there has been a large decrease in child labor and this problem new very light, yet in the secondary schools, there are now many missing the opportunity of attendance, who should be receiving that benefit.

Mr. Hardy made the point definite that society must absorb the younger people into their businesses and industry as they are graduated from school for there is little opportunity at present for the white collar class, or the man either who seeks common labor.

The men, following the luncheon, were taken on a tour of inspection of the new school plant.

J. W. Ault, instructor at State College; Clarence R. Swenson, principal of Point Loma high school; and George Crawford, business manager of the city board of education, were guests at the luncheon. Representation was had also by a good turnout of Ocean Beach Kiwanis members, Chamber of Commerce members, V.

A great many people attended the formal opening of the new Ocean Beach school auditorium on Tuesday evening, January 15. The auditorium was filled to capacity.

Among those who came to the program were members of the Board of Education, Will C. Crawford, superintendent of school; Clarence R. Swenson of Point Loma High school and Robert D. Williams, vice-principal of Point Loma High school. A program which included Spanish Dances by the PTA dancing class, a play by PTA members, and "Umbrellas", a play by the H2 children, was enjoyed by all present. Will C. Crawford gave an interesting talk.

About forty men made reservations for the men's luncheon served on Wednesday, January 16th. A program was presented by the school children as follows: (1) Kindergarten band, directed by Miss Carol Eaton; (2) A group of Indian songs were presented by Miss Barnes L3 children; Gwendolyn Harvey, Joyce Clark, Wilberta Jarrad, Jean Temple, Mary Lou Wenrich, Johnny Cooper, Melba Noorda, Laurence Purdy, Edith Samuels and Rodney Marshall; (3) Two folk dances were given by Mrs. Karl's L1-H1 children including the entire class; (4) "Umbrellas" a play by Miss Van Horn's H2 children; Darleen Frieze, Gardner Kirk, Rob Roy Nelson, Walter Canady; (5) "What's Next?" a talk by Dr. E. L. Hardy, president of the San Diego State college. Jay D. Conner was general chairman of the luncheon program.

Thruout the entire week of Jan. 14-18, the children's work was displayed in each classroom. The charcoal drawings in the hall of the new building were made by children in Miss Shea's grade. The folders on display in the hall were compiled by Mrs. Moon's L6-H5 children.

The week's celebration was climaxed by a formal dedication of the new building and open house on Friday, January 18th. Dr. Webber, president of the board of education, was chairman of the program, an entertainment by the school children. Mr. Wilson's H6 grade has finished its power problem and have their picture in front of the room. They have pictures, spelling booklets, arithmetic papers, and many other things on display. A working model telescope was constructed by the H6 children in connection with their study of power.

KEEP NEW PLATE NUMBERS

Jot down your new 1935 license plate numbers as soon as you put the plates on your car. Keep the memorandum in a safe place.

The need for this precaution is emphasized in a statement by the Automobile club of Southern California pointing out that in case the car is stolen the first need is the license number which if given promptly will hasten recovery.

Strength, Beauty and Usefulness Feature New School Unit

This week, January 14th to 18th, the Ocean Beach school celebrates the opening of its fine new primary building. The new structure, the finest primary grade school building in the southwest, was built to replace a twenty-year old structure which had been condemned as unsafe.

One of the outstanding features of the new building is its structural strength. It was designed, by Architect William P. Lodge, A. I. A., to meet and exceed the strict new state specifications for school buildings. One of the workmen on the building commented that "you could set that building on one corner and it would still hold shape." Whether the statement is literally correct or not, it is certain that the building could withstand even the most severe earthquake without damage to the occupants.

Another feature is the beautiful new auditorium. Designed to be acoustically perfect, equipped with an adequate heating system and a power ventilating system, seating three hundred fifty people, and very artistically decorated thru-out. The new auditorium is without question the finest small auditorium in San Diego. On a wall in the auditorium will hang the painting, "Maine Village" by Elliott Torrey, San Diego artist. The picture, one of the Public Works of Art paintings has been assigned to the Ocean Beach school by Reginald Poland, director of the Fine Arts Gallery.

Five classrooms are included in the new building. Each classroom has in connection a workroom with a sink, work benches and lockers in it. The classes will house the Low First, High First, Low Second, High Second, High Second and Low Third grades.

An office suite, containing a waiting room, stock room, nurse's office, secretary's office, and principal's office, is included in the building.

Finally, a new central heating plant, giving adequate steam heat to the kindergarten building, to the third and fourth grade building, the fifth grade building, and to the sixth grade building, as well as to the new primary building, has been installed.

This new school unit is of Spanish type architecture with tile roof, one story, and cost better than $40,000.00. It is an addition of quite some importance to Ocean Beach, and is thoroughly appreciated by our citizens as well as elementary school pupils.

Miss Margaret Rankin, librarian at Ocean Beach branch of the city library system, was a scholar of our early school, almost at its beginning, said when interviewed:

"The Ocean Beach school as I knew it was in one room. It was a very interesting experience to me because I had never attended a country school where all the grades were together. I well remember one youngster with a very deep voice struggling with the alphabet, he would get to K or L and then forget and have to begin all over again. I am afraid my grades would have been very low if this arrangement had continued, because it was so entertaining to listen to the other children in the lower grades recite. However, there was a change, Lt. Wm. Stanley (now Admiral) moved to Ocean Beach with his family of six or seven children. This more than made the necessary number for another teacher. Miss Isabel Brooks was principal then and Miss Ethel Bashore came to take the second room."

"Of course the rooms were light and comfortable but the real problem was heating with a wood stove; when Mr. Barbour kindly took me through the new building the other day he showed with pride the modern oil furnace which furnishes the central heating system. Of all the new features I believe this will be the most appreciated."

"Those who went to the little old Ocean Beach school had a great deal of sentiment for it and there was a feeling of sadness that the building should be torn down, even to make room for the beautiful new one. But those who have seen and those who will see the new building will I am sure be happy to tuck sentiment away and with a feeling of great pride rejoice with the principal, teachers and children who have the privilege of working in this modern building with its efficient equipment."

"The assemblies and programs presented in the court were picturesque, but the wind would blow in the wrong direction and carried the little voices away, and the sun would shine in the eyes of those taking part in the program, so it was again a real thrill to see an auditorium with a large stage, comfortable chairs and an electric controlled ventilating system."

"I am happy to have had the memories of the little old school and also be privileged to see Ocean Beach receive the last word in school construction. I am sure we are all very thankful for the part taken by the people of the community who worked so hard to present the need, also to Mr. Barbour who took such a personal interest in the plans and to the Board of Education and the city of San Diego for making it possible."

Today (Friday) the formal dedication of the new building will take place at 2 to 2:45 p. m. There will be an entertainment by children of the school with members of the city Board of Education as guests and Dr. Chester Webber, president of the Board as speaker, also open house to all the rooms for the visitors, 2:45 to 4 p. m.

1935 TELEPHONE ALMANAC AVAILABLE AT SAN DIEGO OFFICE

Those who find a fascination in the movements of the sun, the moon, and the stars will again be interested to know that the Telephone Almanac, containing information about the universe in 1935, is now available at the local telephone office.

A. E. Scott, district manager of the Southern California Telephone company, stated today that copies of the 1935 edition will be given out free of charge as long as the supply lasts to all those who call in person at the business office, located at 914 C street, San Diego, California.

Incidents from American history and data on the development of communication are contained in the book, an annual publication by the Bell System which in typography and illustration resembles the earliest books of its kind.

DR. GILMER FILES STUDIED REPORT OF APOSHIAN CASE

Dr. John P. Gilmer, physician with offices in the Kraft building here, recently completed several months of study and investigation of the Dabert Aposhian case, and it is said fully coincides with the theory of former Sheriff Ed Cooper in his conclusion that the body was mutilated by crabs and fish of San Diego bay. Dr. Gilmer made detailed search and investigation in a number of cases that have been the result of drownings; interviewing coroners, undertakers and physicians from here to San Francisco, about cases where bodies have been in the coastal waters for a number of days. His reports from these men and professors at the universities substantiate the conclusions of Dr. Gilmer.

Retail value of gasoline consumed by motor vehicles in the United States during 1934 totaled $2,730,000,000 including taxes, according to a report to the Automobile club of Southern California.

Survey of Collier Park Bailey New President for School Purposes Chamber Commerce

Tuesday morning arrangement had been made for a joint meeting of school board officials, a representative of the city manager's office, and Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce, at Collier park to look over that site as a possible junior high school center, however, the morning in question was stormy and very rainy, but we are told two members of the school board turned out, also Fred Lockwood from the city manager's office, and a local representative. Arrangements were made to have a survey taken at once to see what ground was available, the acreage and a definite description is being given to the school board this week, who in turn will direct a letter to the city council and the city manager, asking that the land in question be placed upon the ballot of the spring election so that the property wanted for school purposes can be turned to the school board, if voted upon favorably by the citizens.

POINT LOMA EASTERN STARS

Point Loma chapter O. E. S. No. 490 will hold a food sale Saturday, January 26th at the Ocean Beach Hardware store, Newport Ave., next door to Fried's.

The officers of Point Loma chapter O.E.S., will hold a practise at J. D. Spreckles hall, Fourth and University, Saturday evening, January 19, at 7:30 p. m. SHARP.

Point Loma Star club will be postponed one week from the regular date to meet January 31st at the home of Margaret Usery, 4762 Pescadero Ave., for potluck luncheon at twelve noon.

Point Loma chapter O. E. S. will meet Monday, January 21st, in the Masonic hall. After the regular meeting a reception will be held honoring our new affiliated members, Mary S. Thomson and Algy L. Lambert. Fern Herbst is chairman of the evening.

La Jolla, San Diego and Point Loma chapters, O.E.S. will receive the official visit of the worthy grand matron, Minnie Viola Collins, and worthy grand patron, J. Hartley Taylor, in J. D. Spreckles Masonic hall 3919 Fourth Ave., Friday night, January 25th at 8 p. m.

UNUSUAL CONSECUTIVE TWINS HAVE RELATIVES HERE

A few weeks ago considerable publicity was given to Mrs. Naomi Basham of Riverside, California, as the mother of two sets of twins born during 1929, four children in one year. The children, thriving youngsters now, are Wesley and Leslie, born January 6, 1929, and Pauline and Eugene, born December 16, the same year.

Mrs. Basham is a native of Oklahoma, 29, and with Mr. Basham has lived at Riverside since 1927. The couple has five other children.

This now famous family are relatives of Mr. and Mrs. William Walters of Camp Holiday, Ocean Beach.

TONY'S ONLY PLACE RECEIVING ON SALE LICENSE

Tony's DeLoma Confectionery last week was busy installing an additional lunch counter and otherwise remodeling to take care of business under the "on sale" liquor license which he has been granted and so far as we are able to learn is the only one of Ocean Beach to apply for. The additional investment is said in the neighborhood of $1,000. An "on sale" license, we are told, is one where the dealer is licensed for the privilege of serving hard liquors over the counter of his establishment.

Monday night the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce held their regular January meeting, electing a board of trustees composed of Dr. H. E. Bailey, Albert Dumont, E. E. Steele, Wm. Richley, H. J. Thomas, Carl Schroder, John McAlpine, Ed. H. Wickern, A. Hubbard, R. Nagel, H. H. Hartvigsen, Wm. J. S. Jones, H. K. Rankin, B. B. Wright, Frank B. McElwee and A. W. Ostrom.

Immediately following the election of the directors these men chose Dr. Bailey as president of the organization for 1935, H. J. Thomas was re-elected vice president and Heber H. Hartvigsen, secretary-treasurer.

The body went on record as opposing the City of San Diego buying the rehabilitated and newly extended fishing pier at Pacific Beach, it being understood that the price asked by the bank endeavoring to sell same, being greater than the estimate by the city engineer for a pier of twice the length at Ocean Beach, further that Ocean Beach's request and plans for a pier have been on file with the city council for two years or more and that this pier at Pacific Beach being already built will be the asset desired by that section while a new pier constructed at Ocean Beach will create considerable labor and expenditure for material, necessary as a part of the reconstruction program, further that a fishing pier here would serve more people and cover a better fishing ground. The city will be asked by letter to the city council and the city manager to allot sufficient money to build a pier at Ocean Beach, rather than to buy one already built at Pacific Beach.

The secretary was instructed to write the city department of public works requesting the alleys of Ocean Beach be graded as soon as storms had subsided and to ask the filling in of Formosa street at Loma Alta by hauling soil from the baseball ground in Collier park where it was necessary to level same.

E. E. Steele reported on the 1935 program of the American Legion and asked and received the adoption of the following resolution:

RESOLVED: That the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce hereby endorse the entire legislative program of the American Legion for the year of 1935 to wit: Immediate full payment of the Adjuster Service Certificate, proper protection for the widows and orphans of our dead comrades, construction of an adequate national defense (a navy second to none) and a Universal Service law, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to George Burnham, Senators Johnson and McAdoo, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, the San Diego Union-Tribune, the San Diego Sun and the Ocean Beach News.

Albert Dumont reported a committee and members were invited to meet with the City School Board the following morning at 8 o'clock for inspection of Collier park as a junior high school site.

H. J. Thomas spoke of the need of more and better rest room facilities and Dumont reported on plans for same.

Thomas moved a rising vote of thanks be given The Ocean Beach News for its splendid publicity and help during the past year, which vote was given.

E. E. Steele suggested each civic organization of the beach be invited to send a delegate to the meetings of the Chamber of Commerce. This suggestion was very favorably received and the president stated any organization or person was always welcome at the meetings.

ON THE LINE

Councilman Bennett says that when he left a hotel in Pasadena he left a $20 bill on the bureau in his room. Bets along gamblers' row are even money a blonde got it; 10 to 7 a brunette, and 100 to 1 that what ever Bennett says about it isn't so!

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

SENATOR VANDENBERG PLANS TO TAKE POSTAL DEPARTMENT CLEAR OUT OF POLITICS.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan, liberal Republican, says he will introduce in the senate a bill designed to take the Post Office department out of politics.

Senator Vandenberg

The measure he has drafted would put all postmasters and postal officials, except the postmaster general, under the civil service, and in the giving out of jobs the post office employees would have the preference. Senator Vandenberg has been persistently demanding that Postmaster General Farley either resign from the cabinet or give up his chairmanship of the Democratic national committee. In line with this his bill would prohibit the postmaster general from holding any political office.

The Michigan senator said he had written the bill after conferences with the civil service commission and service organizations within the Post Office department. He predicted it would have strong support from the latter quarter.

By taking politics out of the department and establishing a career service, Vandenberg said, "the pavement-pounding letter carriers may look forward to ultimate graduation to the high post of first assistant postmaster general."

"Under this bill," he added, "politics and postal affairs at last are separated as far as is possible in a democracy. All local postmasters are put squarely under civil service with emphatic and effective priorities given to the 'postal grays' themselves."

"Existing postmasters are permitted to serve out their present commissions. Thereupon the vacancies are filled by promotion from the service ranks. Only in the event that no such person is available—and we anticipate that this contingency would not arise other than in some of the smallest offices—can the vacancy be filled otherwise than by promotion."

SEVERAL high ranking officers in the army and War department officials, as yet unnamed, are involved in a scandal concerning the awarding of department claims and contracts, and Secretary of War Dern has ordered an investigation. One officer is suspected of having accepted bribes for swelling claims and another of having supplied valuable contract information in return for a loan from a lobbyist.

This was revealed in the final report of the subcommittee of the house military affairs committee investigating War department transactions.

The report also discloses that its recommendation in a preliminary report last June for the removal of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps, has been turned over to the inspector general of the army. This is the usual step preliminary to placing such a matter before a military tribunal, the report states.

Foulois is not one of the men under suspicion. The preliminary report charged him with "misconduct and gross inefficiency" after an inquiry into the disastrous management of the air mail by the army early in the year.

IN THE opinion of Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis of Kansas City, code price fixing under the NRA is illegal and congress has not the power either to fix prices or to authorize the President to do so, even in transactions undoubtedly a part of interstate commerce. His decision was given in denying a temporary injunction sought by the government against the operators of the Sutherland Lumber company, which maintains yards in Oklahoma, Iowa, and Nebraska.

AMBASSADOR HIROSI SAITO handed to Secretary of State Hull Japan's formal denunciation of the Washington naval treaty, and at about the same time the American delegates to the naval conversations in London sailed for home. The treaty remains in effect until the end of 1936, but it is the hope of the Japanese that a new pact will be signed, giving them global parity with the United States and Great Britain instead of the existing 5-5-3 ratio.

STILL hoping that President Roosevelt will take notice of the opinions of business men for which he called, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States now recommends that the national recovery act be replaced by new legislation to take federal regimentation out of business. The expression of the organization followed a tabulation of a referendum vote of the commercial and trade organizations in its membership.

The business group declared itself for revision by the coming congress after a weighing of experiences under the present stringent regulatory laws. By an overwhelming majority members voted that the NRA, the enabling act of the National Recovery administration, should not be continued or extended.

As its foremost declaration members of the association agreed that industry should formulate its own rules of fair competition and that the government's part should be confined to approval or veto.

Further the association's membership expressed itself strongly against intrastate regulation of the NRA as evolved through the various state legislative enactments supporting the NRA.

IT IS reported in Washington that the federal communications commission will recommend to congress a law that will permit the merger of all wire, telegraph, cable and wireless services controlled by American interests, and that it has the tacit approval of the President.

Waiving the antitrust laws, the legislation would make the following companies eligible to join: International Telephone and Telegraph company, which controls the Postal Telegraph company; R. C. A. Communications, Inc., and Western Union. I. T. & T. operates also in both the field of cable and radio; the R. C. A. radio networks spread to about forty countries and Western Union, besides its great telegraph system, has a wide cable service.

GEORGE H. TINKHAM, the bearded and sharp-tongued representative from Massachusetts, has revived the controversy over the League of Nations with an assertion that the United States is being slipped into the league through the back door.

Secretary Perkins

He says the joint resolution adopted in the last few days of the Seventy-third congress, making the United States a member of the international labor organization was the first of a contemplated series of moves designed to put the United States openly into the league, contrary to the wishes of the people and of congress, and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was the especial object of his attack. Using such harsh words as "fraud" and "intrigue" Mr. Tinkham accused Secretary Perkins of employing "contemptible trickery" in urging adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Tinkham quoted the labor secretary as saying that the international labor organization, "is not even now an integral part of the League of Nations, and membership in the organization does not imply affiliation with the league." He continued:

"This statement is the grossest perversion of the truth. It is squarely contrary to the facts—facts established by an indelible record, the treaty of Versailles. The statement contained in the letter of the secretary of labor was intended to deceive. The secretary knew that the congress of the United States was opposed to entry into the League of Nations and would not vote for entry knowingly. Entry was therefore made surreptitiously and fraudulently."

"Article 392 of the treaty of Versailles states:

"The international labor office shall be established at the seat of the League of Nations as part of the organization of the league."

"This audacious intrigue to have the United States enter the League of Nations by way of one of the organs of the league is to be followed by an attempt to have the United States enter another of its organs, the Permanent Court of International Justice of the League of Nations, this subsequently to be followed by a proposal of full membership in the League of Nations. Thus, the independence of the United States will be destroyed, the will of the American people thwarted, and the United States inevitably involved in the next European conflict."

PROSECUTION and defense attorneys completed their preparations for the trial of Bruno Hauptmann on the charge of murdering the Lindbergh baby.

The little town of Flemington, N. J., was a busy place. The names of 48 venturers were drawn for examination as jurors, and the sensation over the mailing of a satire on the Lindbergh case to 150 prospective jurors died down. C. Lloyd Fisher, defense counsel, said he would not ask for a new panel.

Betty Gow, the nurse who put the Lindbergh baby to bed the night he was kidnapped and killed, arrived from Scotland on the liner Aquitania and went at once to the Morrow home in Englewood, N. J., to await her call as one of the state's star witnesses. She declined to talk to reporters, but posed for cameramen. There was a report that Miss Gow might remain in this country and take up her former job in the Lindbergh household. She had acted as nurse for Jon, second son born to the Lindberghs, until she returned to Scotland several months ago.

Hauptmann seemed calm as the time for his ordeal approached, and he ate a hearty Christmas dinner. Mrs. Hauptmann, who moved from the Bronx to Flemington to be near her husband, made a radio appeal "to the people of the country to wait until they hear every side of the story before they condemn him."

She reiterated her belief that Hauptmann had nothing to do with the kidnapping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. She repeated her story that Hauptmann had waited for her at a Bronx bakery where she worked the night of the kidnapping and had taken her home.

POPE PIUS XI is not optimistic concerning world peace. In his Christmas eve address, delivered according to custom to the cardinals resident in Rome, the Holy Father said that "the clamor of war spreads ever farther, and he urged the world to pray and work for peace. "We see a constant increase in warlike arms," the pope continued.

"This is a distracting element in which the spirit seems to have no part. We are on the eve of a day when the heavens resound with the hymns of angels calling for peace on earth. Never has the chant had more reason for being than today."

King George, in a radio address to all parts of the British empire, was a little more cheerful. He adjured his "peoples beyond the seas" to remember that they all belonged to one great family.

He made a special effort to reach the restless multitudes in India, whose fate now is in the hands of parliament, by assuring them of his "constant care of them."

President Roosevelt's brief Christmas talk was addressed especially to the citizens of America, calling for "courage and unity," for greater happiness and the improvement of human welfare.

WHEN Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau recently commended "a public spirited citizen" for reporting the activities of income tax consultants, he was alluding to Thomas N. McCarter, president of the New Jersey Public Service corporation and of the Edison Electric Institute. Mr. McCarter gave testimony before a District of Columbia grand jury and that body returned an indictment against four persons, two of them treasury employees. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government.

Those named in the indictment were: John W. Hardgrove, formerly associate chief conferee of the internal revenue bureau, who was dismissed by Secretary Morgenthau after an investigation.

Henning R. Nelson, formerly an auditor in the bureau, dismissed along with Hardgrove.

Frank B. Nelson of New York city, practicing privately as a tax consultant.

Richard E. Callaghan, also of New York, associated with McElhill in the tax consulting business.

SENATOR JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS of Illinois, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations and a veteran in international conferences, has set forth a view concerning treaties for disarmament or reduction of armaments that will meet with the approval of many of his fellow citizens, though they are sharply at variance with those of the administration.

Senator Lewis

He evidently is glad the Washington naval pact is dying, owing to the action of Japan, and he says that in future the United States must, for its own sake, remain aloof from all such agreements, because they are almost certain to embroil us in war.

Addressing the National Forum in Washington, Senator Lewis declared the recent naval conversations in London, succeeded only in designing a "chart of death to men, destruction to nations," and he warned against the renewal of the Washington treaty.

"Plain it must be," Senator Lewis pointed out, "that should we enter the deal, and it is disobeyed by any of its parties, the United States must be called on by the nations involved to lend ourselves to enforce the compact. This means war upon the United States by the nations we threaten to force to obedience, or war from the nations we refuse to aid in the enforcement."

"To the United States nothing but evil and danger awaits our entrance into any international contract with foreign nations preparing for war on each other."

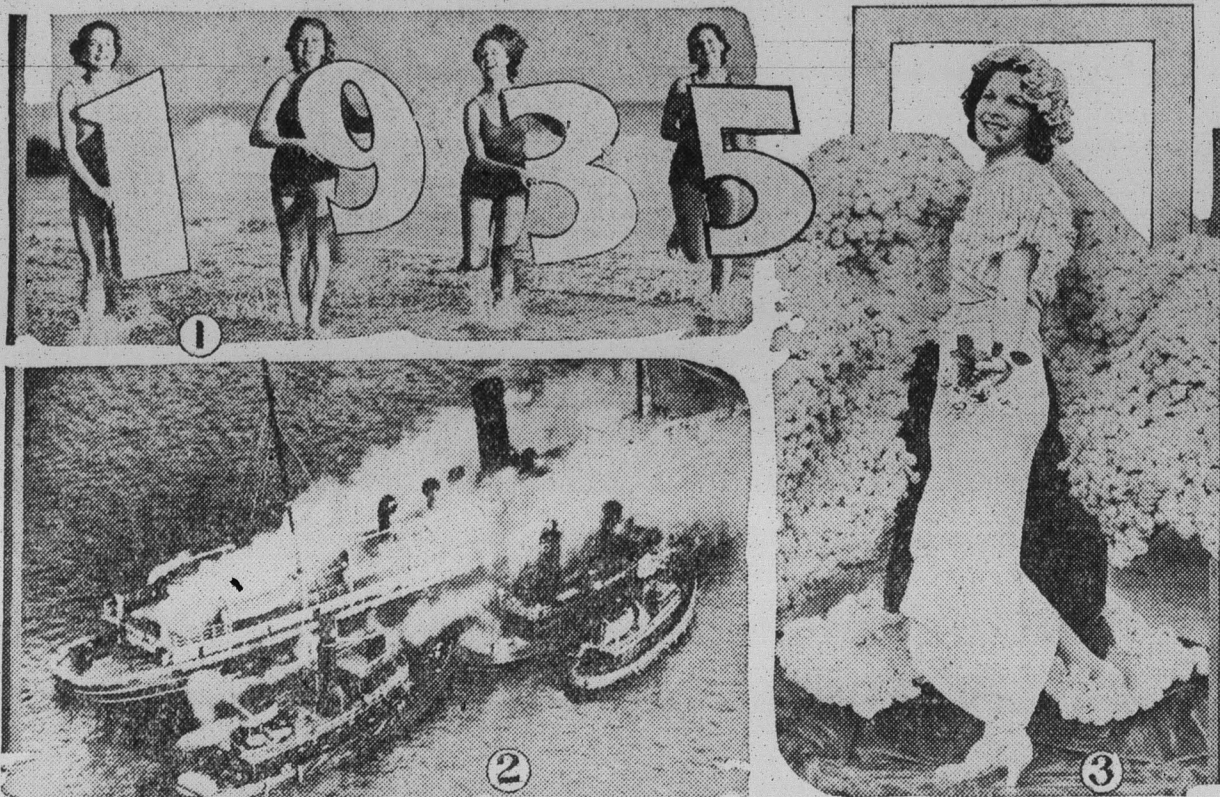

America wants no war and wants armaments only for self-defense, the senator said, and America does not recognize the right of any international conference to tell her what arms she needs for that purpose.

"On this right of our own self-defense America stands sovereign in her guarded isolation," he inferred other nations. "We deny the privilege of any nation to dictate to the United States the quantity or quality of protection our nation shall adopt."

War can come to the United States only through her foreign entanglements, Senator Lewis explained, and because of the present warlike attitude of the world, America must stand isolated.

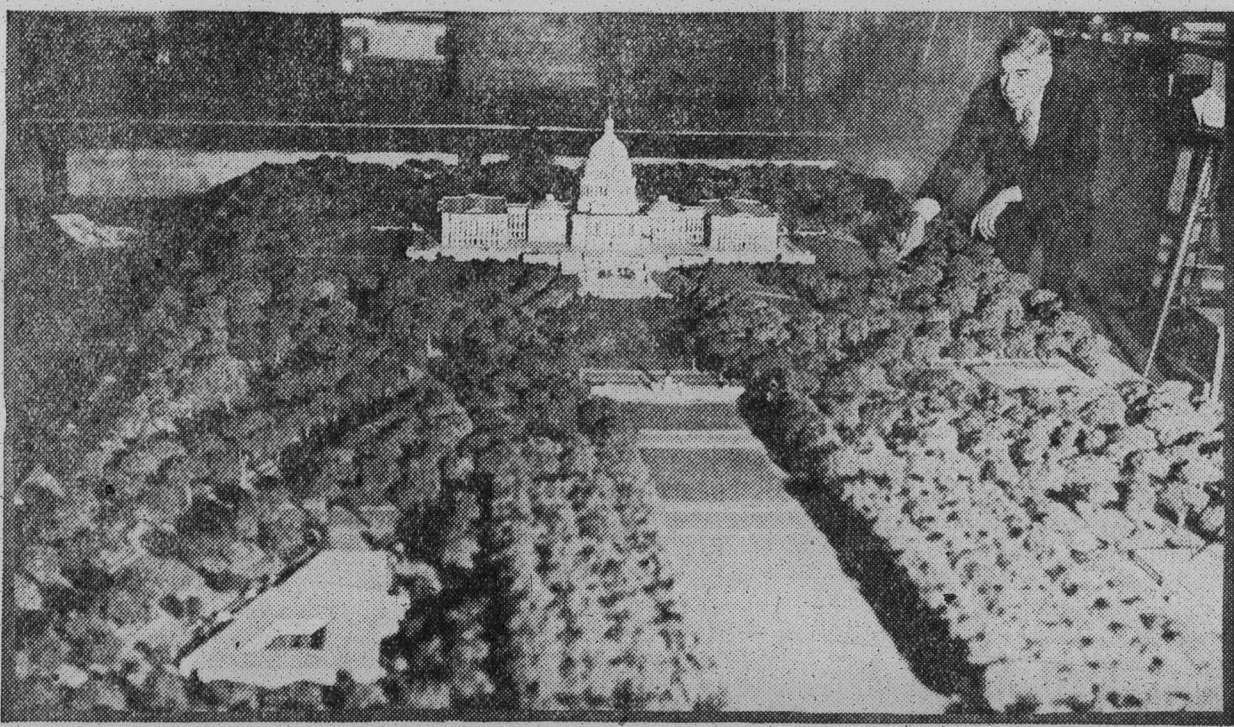

SPEAKING of war, it is interesting to learn that the senate mission to the Philippines has discovered that those islands "possess the most important source of war material under the American flag." Senator Tydings of Maryland sent the word from Manila that there are in Zambales province deposits of chromite so large that they have attracted the attention of other nations. John W. Hays, secretary of the islands' gold mining industry, told the senators these deposits may soon take their place as one of the most important ore bodies in the world, and he added significantly that chromium is the one war material which the United States does not have in ample quantities within its borders. These deposits in the Philippines were discovered after the Tydings-McDuffie independence act was drafted.

This looks like a part of a fortress of the Middle Ages, but in reality it is a view at Boulder dam looking obliquely along the overflow edge of Arizona spillway. The view shows the piers with 16 by 100-foot drum gates in lowered position. These immense steel gates can be raised or lowered to decrease or increase the flow of water over the spillway. Boulder dam is now built to a height of 625 feet above bedrock and will reach its final height of 726 feet late in February, at which time it can begin to store water.

They Grew Them in Alaskan Waters

WHEN the United States coast guard cutter Northland returned the other day to Oakland, Calif., after seven months in Alaskan waters, the wives, sisters and sweethearts of members of the crew had some difficulty in recognizing their men, for all of them wore luxuriant beards. The cutter was on its annual medical cruise among the Eskimos and seemingly carried no razors, though nearly every kind of surgical instrument was in its equipment. It gave medical and dental aid to 2,000 Eskimos in various ports, and also put ashore a force to help in the rehabilitation of Nome after the big fire.

PETER LEARNS SOMETHING ABOUT SEEP SEEP

"HELLO! There's Seep Seep! I haven't seen him since we were together up north, where his home was not far from mine," exclaimed Yank the Nuthatch.

As he spoke a little brown bird alighted at the foot of the very next tree. He was just a trifle bigger than Jenny Wren but not at all like Jenny, for while Jenny's tail usually is cocked up in the sauciest way, Seep Seep's tail is never cocked up at all. In fact, it bends down, for Seep Seep uses his tail in climbing just as the members of the Woodpecker family use theirs. He was dressed in grayish-brown above and grayish-white beneath. Across each wing was a little band of buffy-white and his bill was curved down just a little.

When he alighted at the foot of that tree, Seep Seep didn't stop an instant but started up, going round and round it as he climbed and picking out things to eat under the bark. His way of climbing that tree was very like creeping and Peter thought that Seep Seep was well named the Brown Creeper. He would have liked to gossip with Seep Seep, but he knew that Seep Seep would waste no time that way.

"Hello! There's Seep Seep."

Round and round up the trunk of that tree went Seep Seep and, when he reached the top, at once flew down to the bottom of the next tree and without a pause, started up that. He wasted no time exploring the branches, but kept to the trunk. Once in a while he would cry in a thin little wiry voice, "Seep! Seep!" but never paused to rest or look around. If he had felt that on him alone depended the job of getting all the insect eggs and grubs on those trees, he could not have been more industrious.

"Does he build his nest in a hole in a tree?" asked Peter of Yank the Nuthatch.

Yank Yank shook his head. "No," he replied. "He hunts for a tree or an old stub with a piece of loose bark hanging to it. In behind this he tucks his nest made of twigs, strips of bark and moss. He's a funny little fellow and I don't know of anyone in all the Great World who more strictly attends to his own business than does Seep Seep the Brown Creeper. He's little but he is mighty useful. Farmer Brown ought to be glad every time he sees him." By the way, Peter, have you seen anything of Doty the Tree Sparrow?"

"Not yet," replied Peter, "but I think he must be here. I'm glad you reminded me of him. I'll go look for him."

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

WINTRY SUGGESTIONS

NOW is the season, while citrus fruits are plentiful, to prepare marmalades. As tastes differ as to bitterness in the marmalade, one has to be guided as to the amount of the rind used in the mixture. For those who like a mild and still flavorful marmalade use one each of lemon, orange and grapefruit.

Apple Salad.

One of the most satisfactory salads for winter is the one of apples—small-sized Baldwins, or any good apple; peel carefully after coring and use apples of uniform size. Cook in sugar sirup with a small handful of the little cinnamon candies, which add flavor as well as color. When cool serve on lettuce stuffed with cream or cottage cheese and garnish the top with a sprig of parsley.

Grapefruit and Almond Salad.

Cut the pulp of two grapefruit into dice, add two ounces of blanched and chopped almonds to the drained pulp.

Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin with boiling water and the juice from the fruit to make two cupsful, using one cupful of grapefruit juice and one of water. When the mixture begins to thicken add the almonds and a tablespoonful of sugar. Pour into a mold and set away to harden. Serve with mayonnaise as a salad or with whipped cream as a dessert.

Casserole of Cauliflower.

Soak a head of cauliflower in salt water for half an hour, head down, so if there are any insects lodged in it they will come out. Break into sprigs of flowerets and cook in very little boiling water 20 minutes. Take one and one-half cupsful of cooked macaroni, one and one-half cupsful of strained tomatoes, one-half cupful of grated cheese, salt, pepper and buttered crumbles. Add the cheese to the tomatoes and cook until the cheese is melted. Season with salt and pepper and pour over the layers of cauliflower and macaroni. Cover with buttered crumbles and bake about 20 minutes. Serve hot.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I went into a very fine cafe and ordered a cup of coffee, but I refused to drink it. It looked just like "mud." Can you tell me how or why a reputable cafe could serve coffee that looked like "mud"?

Truly yours,

VIC SALVE.

Answer: In all good eating places you will find the coffee looks like "mud" for the simple reason that the coffee is always GROUND right before it is cooked.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have been in ten drug stores but have been unable to get any bunion plasters. The druggists all say they wouldn't have them in the place. Can you tell me why?

Sincerely,

I. M. A. HEEL.

Answer: The reason the drug stores haven't any bunion plasters in their places is because the druggists are afraid of the law. There is a law against harboring FOOT-PADS.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me the worst penalty imposed on a bigamist? In other words, what would be the severe penalty for a man marrying three women?

Truly yours,

UNO AWL.

Answer: His penalty is having three mothers-in-law.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Where does the goods go when you get a hole in your stocking?

Yours truly,

ANA POLOGY.

Answer: The same place your fist goes to when you open your hand.

MY BOY COMES HOME

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I THINK I know what heaven is like now—
A little yard where grass is growing green;
A robin chirping on an apple bough,
As from the fence the crimson roses lean.

It is late afternoon, and suddenly I hear the gate click . . . the familiar sound
Of youthful footsteps coming close to me.
A shadow throws its length across the ground.

I think I know what heaven is—the strong
Young arms that I have waited for in vain;
An eager voice that I have missed too long,
And heaven breaks! My boy is home again!

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

by Vance Wynn © Public Ledger

All on Account of a Bunch of Keys

WHEN the list of the victims of the Lake Shore railroad wreck, near Ashtabula, Ohio, on December 31, 1876, was published the name of John Weyler was near the head of the list.

Many of the bodies were so charred and mutilated that it was impossible to recognize them, and the identification was made through articles of clothing and jewelry found near the dead men and women.

Weyler was an old soldier who had been unable to work for some time because of physical infirmities.

His family was poor and the fact that he was unable to help them depressed him very much.

He mourned over the fact that he was a hindrance rather than a help and more than once expressed the wish that his wife and children might be rid of such a burden.

It was known that he intended going on this particular train, although his family were unaware of his destination.

A reputable Rochester physician testified that he had met Weyler on the train that morning.

In addition to this a bunch of keys belonging to the man was found at the scene of the wreck. Mrs. Weyler identified them as having belonged to her husband.

If further proof were needed it was furnished when it was found that one of the keys fitted the front door of his house, another opened a chest in his room and the third one proved to be the key with which he was in the habit of winding the kitchen clock every night.

Naturally a suit for damages was instituted against the railroad.

The funds to do this were furnished by kind friends of the family who felt that the poor woman deserved damages of some kind.

Naturally, also, there was some question regarding the identification of the body.

This, however, gave promise of being a long-drawn-out controversy, and officials of the corporation offered to settle the claim of the widow for $4,000.

Her lawyers advised her to stick out for $5,000 on the ground that the amount was small enough for the loss of a husband.

She followed their advice and this caused the railroad officials to make a second and more thorough investigation.

There was nothing new to be gleaned from the scene of the wreck, so the detectives who were put on the case began to interview anyone who might have been acquainted with Mr. Weyler.

One of these was General Martindale, under whom the old soldier had served during the war.

The officer said that he had not seen Weyler for more than a year, but that the last time he met him the old man had expressed a wish to go into a soldiers' home, where he would no longer be a care upon the members of his family, who were having a hard struggle to exist.

Thereupon General Martindale had given him a letter authorizing his admission into a soldiers' home in Wisconsin.

There was no time limit to the order.

With this as a clew the investigators went to Wisconsin.

They located the home and found therein an old man who answered the description of John Weyler.

He was in a sort of dazed condition, but it was found from the records that he had arrived there on the last day of the year—the very day of the train wreck—and had been admitted into the institution.

When questioned he said he had a wife and children in Rochester.

The mystery of the keys that fitted the front door, the chest and the clock, were easily explained.

Weyler said he had lost his keys in the street only a few days before, and they must have been picked up by the man who was killed on the train.

He said that he had boarded the train himself, but had left it at Buffalo, and had made the rest of his journey the best he knew how.

Thus was a great mystery cleared up, and in its clearing it was brought out that the wife and the other witnesses had testified in the best of good faith.

They honestly believed that he had been killed in the wreck, and the truth might never have been disclosed if it had not been for the interview with General Martindale and his recollection of the fact that he had given the letter to John Weyler.

Arts and Sciences

According to Jevons, a science teaches us to know and an art to do. Astronomy, for instance, is the foundation of the art of navigation; chemistry is the basis of many useful arts. The arts are distinguished as fine arts and useful arts, the former including painting, sculpturing, music, poetry, architecture; the latter (useful arts) including the trades. The sciences have been variously classified. The principal ones are physics, chemistry, astronomy, meteorology, mathematics, geography, geology, ethnology, anthropology, archaeology, biology and medicine.

GET SMARTNESS IN SATIN FROCK

PATTERN 2029

Probably about now you have decided that you just must have a satin frock. You're right! And here is the model you have been seeking in which to make it. It is a dress you can wear afternoon or evening and always look smart. The jabot is not just an ordinary jabot but something cut in one with the yoke and joined in the bodice on new and very chic principles. The sleeves, too, do things differently, and while there is nothing different about the pleats at the bottom of the skirt, front and back, they afford graceful movement for the slim panels.

Pattern 2029 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

ALL HAIL TO BEN FRANKLIN

Thursday of this week marks the 229th birthday anniversary of a noble character, a mental genius and a truly lovable soul—Benjamin Franklin, the man. Thousands have tried in vain to imitate this beneficent being whose memory grows more vivid and admirable every day. This versatile man was a profound inspiration to everyone he came in contact, and always gave himself wholeheartedly to every useful enterprise that benefitted human-kind.

He began his notable career in Colonial America when very young. He got a smell of printers' ink when young in life and at the age of 17 years was not only a master craftsman, but a brilliant journalist. This was just one of many branches of activity. As a scientist and inventor he not only "harnessed the lightning," but made other important discoveries and contributions to research. Wise and effective beyond precedence in the field of diplomacy, he was almost equally distinguished as a legislator and counsellor in his country's service.

At the age of 51 he began his diplomatic career as envoy and statesman and became an ardent spirit in his coordinating work with the King of England against unjust taxation of the American Colonies. Some of his last labors were as a patriotic member in Congress. As an outstanding figure for justice and peace, he won deep admiration, respect and affection for his achievements and his great gift as a sage and philosopher; all of which have enshrined him in the hearts of countrymen to this day. He died May 17th, 1790.

California again goes into its biennial session of the Legislature with a thirty million dollar debt hanging over it, and a burden of other financial problems not easy of solution—chiefly the tax bugaboo and how to retrench. There is nothing imaginary about either. Governor Merriam with his assemblymen and senators realize their obligation, and if they can lie down at night in pleasant dreams without a nightmare, there may be hope. A thirty million deficit is a mighty short-stop to ramble against, but California has plenty of company from her neighbor states, near and far away. Even the corridors of the Capitol of United States are courting a similar reminder of what must be done to alleviate the pain of taxes and war time reminders. The Governor of California tells us that state government expenses are constantly mounting and that by the end of this biennial period we will have to face a hundred million deficit at the rate we are going! It shows what must be done, and done quickly—great retrenchment everywhere. We are willing to give the job over to the Legislators to exercise their ingenuity for developing means and methods for getting funds to carry on—without increasing the taxes.

The public debt of the United States of America was near twenty eight and a half billion dollars as the New Year dawned upon us. That is a lot of numerals and means a lot of money as well. At this level the public debt surpassed the war-time record debt of $26,596,701,648 by almost $2,000,000,000. The present debt is costing the Federal government nearly $850,000,000 annually in interest charges, which is no small millstone hanging to Uncle Sam's neck. The national public debt should be a warning to government leaders and something tangible introduced into law to call a halt. We must admit that many millions were necessary to meet the exigencies of the worst depression in history. This debt was increased about $7,500,000,000 in the last two years. The increase has gone largely to help finance various recovery agencies and to provide relief for millions of persons.

Everybody is wondering what kind of a baby 1935 will develop into, and it is quite natural that they should. Millions of people have gone timorous during the past few struggling years. A deplorable lack of confidence has been the result—fearful of conditions and with no confidence in themselves. Fear is probably the worst enemy we have, and seemingly the only thing we need to be afraid of is fear itself! People must pull themselves together if there is to be improvement; believe in yourself and have faith in others. Collyer says: "Faith makes the discords of the present, the harmonies of the future." May be we have not thought about it in this way. Then, Emerson put it: "There is no defeat except from within. There is really no insurmountable barrier save your own inherent weakness of purpose." Again Matthew Arnold quotes: "Resolve to be thyself, and know that he who finds himself, loses his misery."

The popularity of the newspaper is growing, notwithstanding the brickbats of criticism hurled at it for many so-called "devious principles" set forth by some. There was an increase of 129 in the number of newspapers published in the United States and Canada in 1934. This number is surprising in contrast with 1933, which showed a loss of 212 compared with 1932. There are 14,091 newspapers in the United States and Canada. Of these 2197 are dailies. Public opinion depends on the newspaper as never before. Modern newspapers are not only improved in their news gathering, but also in their educational departments and strong editorial opinions. One only needs to be a "constant reader" of his home paper to get a liberal education.

Congress always convenes by opening with prayer, which is very reverential by the "law gods," but the way they fight and quarrel over questions on the floor of the House, would indicate that much of their reverence is sheer mockery. These gentlemen might profit from the teachings of the Scripture and realize that successful Democracy depends on fundamentals of the Bible. Before there can be a Democracy their must be theocracy.

The granting of life insurance, is perhaps the most outstanding financial enterprise known in the entire world today. People evidently believe in life insurance since there are in United States alone, over 121,760,536 life policies in force, and the value represented in money is nearly nine billion dollars, or nearly an average of one policy to every two people.

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN
POST No. 2415
AND AUXILIARY

Christmas activities are now over and we are again busy on the yearly program. The officers and members of the post and auxiliary of this organization and the American Legion post 433 wish to thank the merchants and citizens of this community for their hearty support of the Christmas basket relief which enabled the committee in charge to furnish every needy family which came to their attention with a well stocked hamper. In particular do we wish to thank through the Woman's club, Miss Ter Heggen's school of dance, for their very generous cash donation and Mr. Gruber of the Ocean Beach theatre who donated the proceeds of an entire evening's show to this cause. Also do we thank H. W. Lamb of Encinitas for his gift of avocados.

Former members who have recently returned to an active status in the post are Geo. W. McBride and James G. Busick. Welcome back comrades.

The post and auxiliary will give a card party at the Woman's club on Thursday evening, January 24th, at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded in bridge, 500 and finch. The public is invited. Come and bring your friends. Plans are being formulated for holding the fourth annual "Hello America!" nation wide radio program under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. This will take place on Thursday, February 1st, at an open meeting to which the public is invited.

At the last meeting of the Lt. Bert A. Allen auxiliary 2415, Mesdames Josie Pape and Catherine Whalen were initiated as active members and Mrs. Mary L. Roberts as an honorary member who has so graciously accepted the appointment of musician. We welcome these ladies with open arms and trust that they will enjoy being with us as much as we anticipate happiness with them in our midst.

Esther Lee Wisdom was elected a one year delegate to County Council and is to be installed as one of their color bearers at their next meeting.

A committee is busy under the chairmanship of Bette Knauer for a food sale to be held the last Wednesday of this month at the Hardware store on Newport.

Our chaplain, Florence Usher, is ill in the hospital, but doing well from the latest report. We are overjoyed to have our junior past president, Wilema Padgett, back at her home from a sojourn at Mercy hospital, and is on the high road to recovery. Sister Padgett we have missed you, and sister Usher, too.

The quilt that was raffled off at the social meeting in December was won by Mrs. Clara De Renne a member of Amaroc auxiliary. A lovely quilt to a lovely lady.

Sisters of the auxiliary we need you and your good ideas for "pretties" and "usefuls" for our bazaar to be given this spring, so turn out for the sewing and pot luck luncheons on the 3rd Thursday of each month. This month Mrs. Anna Madigan is our hostess.

As this article goes to press word comes that Jeanette Bradley is quite ill at her home on Sunset Cliffs Blvd. We hope sister Bradley will soon be well and has the best wishes of all her friends.

Women of Gas Co. Hear About Strange People

In the weekly luncheon held Wednesday noon by the Women's Committee, composed of employees of the San Diego Consolidated Gas & Electric Co., Louise Berger, 4459 Del Monte avenue, as chairman of her last meeting had A. J. Allen of Ocean Beach as guest speaker. Mrs. Elizabeth Hannah was also a guest of the committee.

Mr. Allen told of primitive Africans who eat insects, talk a bird language and have strange community marriage system, and that white men have seldom visited this strange tribe.

In recounting this great adventure Allen said he was in the club at Brisbane, telling a group of friends about some of the things he had seen, when a railroad official offered to show him something he had never before seen—something, in fact, which only four or five white men had ever seen.

They traveled 1,000 miles into the interior of the continent by train, went several hundred miles by auto, then took a narrow-gauge railroad 200 miles farther.

Getting off near the end of the narrow-gauge line, they found a guide whom the railroad official had hired during a trip into the country 15 years before. The guide had an ancient Ford car equipped with solid rubber tires.

They loaded the car down with a barrel of water, several kegs of gasoline and a small boat and started across a desert. Half way across—and still 130 desert miles from their destination—they ran out of water.

The guide informed them calmly they would die of thirst in the torrid desert before they could travel 130 miles. He held out one hope, however. They might find a barrel tree.

A barrel tree, he said, sometimes put its roots down 200 feet into the ground in search of water. Having found moisture, it sucks up into a crevice in its trunk, where it is stored.

The car chugged on across the desert. Finally, when the tongues of the occupants were actually hanging out, a tree was sighted. It was a barrel tree, and the water supply was replenished. Another day of traveling and the trio came to a broad clear stream flowing in a canyon thru the desert.

The car was abandoned and the boat was launched. The party floated down stream to a spot where canyon widened out a little and formed a green valley.

As the boat touched the shore the party was met by a tall, naked native who looked as though he were wearing strings of sausages around his chest and arms.

He appeared neither frightened nor hostile. Chattering in a strange, bird-like manner, he led the way to his village.

There the travelers saw other men with the "sausages" around them. There were also numerous women and children. All were nude.

The guide explained the the braves slit the skin on their chests and arms and stuffed red clay into the openings thus creating the sausage-like appearance. The man with the most mud-filled slits was the bravest man.

Large groups of men, women and children were lolling in each "house". The "houses" were just four poles supporting a crude brush roof.

The guide—who seemed to know a great deal about the tribe in spite of the fact that he had only been there twice before—said that each of the groups was a family.

Twelve men and eighteen women would be married to each other at a single ceremony, he said. Thereafter these "newlyweds" would occupy a house and be husband and wife to each other.

The reason for this is economic. There is little food in the valley. Formerly the strongest men would marry most of the women. These large households would catch practically all of the bugs and dig most of the worms that are the chief source of nutrition.

In the group households the food is pooled—all except insects caught on the wing and devoured as caught.

Altho the tribe paid little attention to the visitors, individuals would flee into the underbrush when an attempt was made to photograph them.

Their language seemed to consist of a series of calls of signals—little chirping noises.

(POINT LOMA HIGH SCHOOL)

This has been a busy week at Point Loma High school. With seventeen new students, with the Senior High Honor Society Ditch Day on Monday, the Havra Hubbard Operalogue of "Il Pagliacci" on Tuesday morning, the SERA dancing class Tuesday after school, the completion of next semester's programs for the entire school, the practices going on apace for "The Importance of Being Earnest", and the Commercial Department assembly yesterday and today (Thursday and Friday) this has been a busy week composed of five busy days.

The new students are: Elizabeth Grayson from St. Petersburg, Fla.; Kate Bunson from Herbert Hoover High school; Mary French Field from Pasadena; Jim Crane and Pedro Castro from San Francisco; Venecia Lyon from Lancaster, Calif.; Bobby Banks from Encinitas; June Stowell and Malcolm Thompson from Roosevelt Junior High school; Leonard and Virginia Bryan from Toms River, New Jersey; Katherine Lowe from Honolulu; Muriel Hague from Yonkers, New York; Regina and Mary L. Tessa from San Ysidro; Raoul Foster returned after an illness; and Harry Tom, a Chinese student from part time school.

The Operalogue of "Il Pagliacci", given by Havra Hubbard, with James O'Connor at the piano, was a delightful experience to a large group of students, teachers, and parents on Tuesday morning at nine-fifteen. Upon a stage severely but beautifully simple with a red brown shimmer from paneled walls, Dr. Hubbard recreated the drama that has made Leoneavallo world-known. With taste and sympathy and skillful adaption Mr. O'Connor gave an unusually suggestive idea of the music of the opera. The lucid exposition prefacing the dramatic interpretation; the graphic dramatization of the action; the elusive chanting, singing, saying manner of accompanying the music of the drama combined to produce an impression in the listener of having seen and heard "Il Pagliacci".

Point Loma High school students have been privileged to hear Havra Hubbard in his own field give a characteristically fine thing. Senior High Honor Society Ditch Day Monday was a glowing success from morn till late afternoon with no notice taken of our freak weather. With Miss Irma Gibson, their sponsor, twenty-two of Loma's best spent the morning at the Court House hearing a collision case in the supreme court of Judge Griffin; spent their lunch hour at the Pullman cafe, enjoying lunch together; and the afternoon at the Fox seeing Barrie's "Little Minister" re-nacted by Hepburn. The twenty-two were:

On the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth there will occur at Point Loma High school an annual event of moment to students, teachers and parents: the second of the annual mid-winter plays offered by the dramatic department under the direction of Emory Shepherd: the comedy drama "The Importance of Being Earnest". The play is a sprightly comedy full of farce and complication centering around the identity of a brisk young man of many vagaries. Between unexpected arrivals and invented uncles and deaths that never occurred, the story amusingly gambols along to a happy ending.

One of the most interesting features of this particular dramatic project is the modern stage sets and furniture constructed by the stagecraft class. A rust colored box couch, living room furniture, a fountain and a beautifully suggestive archway for the garden scene are particularly fine examples of what the Loman stagecraft class can do.

The students who will take part in the drama are: David Robinson, Lawrence Casselman, Milton Heller, Eleanor Hicks, Phyllis Mirow, Buda Medlar, Bernice Bostick, Ethel Fried,

1927 Bacon Street

"It Pays To Look Well"

Jane Edwards, Mary Kearns, Eileen Shields, Barbara Lee Rogers, Virginia Lillierap, Maxine Albrecht, Lucette Fischer, Edward Blake, Geo. Myers, Wilton Stuart, and Kenneth Hall.

This January production will be followed in February by the third mid-winter drama (of which Dicken's "Christmas Carol" was the first): "The Rivals" by Sheridan.

The SERA dancing class of Tuesday after school has had its second session with satisfaction to all concerned. The music is good, thanks to Mr. Bill; the instruction is adequate thanks to Mr. Evans; the idea is a corker, produced by Mr. Kearns, director of Recreation; the number of students attending is testing the capacity of the floor chosen; the run of the series stretches on into a rosy number of lessons.

An interesting assembly was given yesterday morning in the auditorium, (Thursday) and is being repeated today (Friday) by the Commercial Department under the management of Miss Troxell, Miss Treiber, Miss Nelson, and Mrs. Giddings. The program was composed of two major features: one by students and one by a professional representative of the Underwood Typewriter company.

Under the chairmanship of Austin Hartvigsen a small group of students will take a speed test upon the stage, and their papers will be scored and the highest scores made known before the assembly adjourns. Prizes, in the form of library passes, are being awarded in both assemblies to the students making the two highest scores. The second part of the program will be a demonstration by James L. Hoyt, whose own record has been 137 words a minute for one hour. The school welcomes an assembly that is entirely different from the ordinary run.

"Justice" Carved in Marble

MASSIVE figures personifying Justice are carved in Vermont marble in the pediment of the United States Supreme Court building which is nearing completion in Washington, D. C.

Seated on a throne in the center of the group of nine figures which stand out in high relief is "Liberty," looking confidently into the future. Across her lap are the scales of Justice.

On either side are guardian figures. "Order," the most active and alert of the two, is on her right, armed with the fasces, Roman badge of authority, scanning the future to detect any menace to Liberty. On her left "Authority" is shown with armor and sword.

To the right and left of the guardians are groups of two figures representing "Council." On the ends recumbent figures represent "Research," past and present. The sculpture is the work of Robert Aitken, of New York

Parent Teacher Ass'n Lutheran Mission

Mrs. J. W. McCausland, president of the Ocean Beach Parent-Teachers' association wishes to thank each and everyone who so warmly and generously responded to invitations to our Spanish dinner Tuesday night. The fine cooperation this community has shown will not be forgotten.

Now that our school building and auditorium is a reality we are hoping to build character, culture and citizenship in today's child, for tomorrow's world that will prove as strong and enduring as the steel and granite used in the making of the building.

"Christ's First Miracle in Cana of Galilee" will be the subject of the sermon at the 10:45 o'clock service. From this first miracle of Jesus, the turning of water into wine, we see the great power He had over Nature. In this way He manifested forth His glory. Come and see how this miracle of Jesus' benefits you today, even as it did His disciples.

The Sunday school lesson for this Sunday will be "The Wedding at Cana". The central ideas which will be brought out are: "By turning water into wine, Jesus showed that He is true God," and also "He made

PERSECUTIONS BRING BLESSINGS

(Matthew 5—10-12)

10. Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. 11. Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. 12. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets before you.

THE SAVOUR AND THE LIGHT

(Matthew 5—13 16)

13. Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. 14. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. 15. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. 16. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Guests present at the meeting were Mrs. Roger D. Mackey, Miss Rose Georgia, Miss Cecilia M. Collier and Theodora Johnson (leader of the Loma Portal Girl Scouts).

Mr. Moon of the San Diego Electric Railway will serve as examiner for the Pathfinder merit badge, Thursday, January 17th, P.L.H.S.

A banquet will be held at Florence Burnham hall, January 25th. Martha Sterne is in charge of table decorations for her troop's table.

T. Morley Harvey is in charge of our contribution to the banquet's entertainment. A rehearsal was held at Wallace hall, Tuesday, Jan. 15.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"The life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us." These words from the First Epistle General of John are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Life" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Lesson-Sermon includes the words of Jesus, from Matthew, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, says: "We all must learn that Life is God. Ask yourself: Am I living the life that approaches the supreme good? Am I demonstrating the healing power of Truth and Love? If so, then the way will grow brighter unto the perfect day."

His people happy by His first miracle. Send the children at 9:30 and let them learn more of Jesus.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services held every Sunday morning at the Woman's club Newport and Abbott Streets.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

Rev. W. S. Dunn's sermon for the Sunday morning service will be "Jesus Only," and at 7:30 he will speak on the subject "The Conquest of the Impossible."

The Young People's society will partake of a pot-luck supper in the school room at 5:30 p. m. A round table discussion will be held in planning for the year's work.

The Mission Circle will hold their monthly meeting in the church parlor on Friday afternoon of this week. An interesting program will be presented by the committee.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

At 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, at Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, the weekly forum-lecture will be delivered by Dr. Lydia Ross, an old member of the literary staff. Her subject will be "Duality in Human Nature," a topic with personal appeal to many thoughtful inquirers. Dr. Ross adds to her experience as a practicing physician a study of the Theosophical teachings regarding the strange contrasts in human makeup, which puzzle even the psychologists.

Prof. Charles Savage will assist the lecturer in answering the questions presented by the audience. He was educated in the Lomaland school and Theosophical university, and since graduation he has been connected with the school as assistant superintendent of the boys' department and is also director of the conservatory of music, where work is well known in this vicinity.

Dr. Ross comes from Boston and for some twenty-five years has been active in the work at Point Loma. She holds that the present disturbed conditions of the world are not due to any outside nature-forces, but that they are the outcome of ignorance of the active dual forces in human nature. In such a transition period as the one we are now passing through, we are called upon to seek a larger knowledge of who and what and where we are. She says, to meet the inevitable changes at hand, man needs to get better acquainted with himself.

M. E. CHURCH SERVICES

"The Inescapable God" will be the subject of the sermon next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. The subject will provoke questions of Does God care? What is the function of religion? Music by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Anna Forsythe.

The Sunday school will meet at 9:45 with classes for all age groups in religious education. Departments and classes from kindergarten age to adults.

Young people's service in the evening at seven o'clock. The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Now what have I done?" she demanded in mock terror, as they entered the enclosed porch gay with wicker and crochones and plants and colored lights.

"This is what you've done, Prue—we'll get down to facts at once. You are the finest, the best sport of any girl I know."

"Thanks for them kind words, but don't try to soften the blow. What have I done that makes you sit there looking as grim as an executioner and—twice as handsome?"

He refused to be diverted by her gaiety. "All right, laugh, but do you realize that you have made me appear to double-cross my best friend? Why did you tell Rod that you were engaged to me?"

"Did he tell you that?"

"Hold on now, sit back in the seat and listen. Something went wrong between him and me the afternoon you and your brother dropped in on us at High Ledges. I felt it but I couldn't get hold of anything. Then things got in such a mess that I put Rod's crabbedness down to worry over the lumbering. Remember when you collapsed the night of the fire?"

"Remember! Of course I remember. I never fainted but once before in my life, and when I think that I crashed when I might have helped more, mortification sends my blood pressure down, down, down."

"Don't worry about that. The ambulance surgeon says you may have a job with him any time you are ready for it. When you went to pieces that night, Rod nearly blew my head off because I left you. Your brother and the doctor were with you; I was needed somewhere else. I stayed, though."

"Martyr," Prudence jeered softly. Not that she felt like being flippant, but to assure herself that her stiff lips would move.

"That night—or morning rather—when we got back from the fire the whole thing came out. You had told Rod that you were engaged to me, and he accused me of underhand methods, because the day I arrived at High Ledges he warned me that he intended to marry you."

"He did?"

"He did. Your eyes look as if they saw the coming of the Lord! Why did you tell him we were engaged? Don't answer. Tell Rod." He cleared his voice. "Promise you will explain to Rodney Gerard; you owe that to me."

"Sorry to interrupt this twosome, Jim, but Prue's brother is looking for her," announced Rodney Gerard behind him.

Armstrong rose. "Great Scott, I had forgotten! This is my chance with the village beauty. Take Prue in, will you, Rod?"

Prudence made a vain effort to clutch his coat. At the door of the living room Gerard put his arm about her.

"Easier to dance through this bunch, do you mind?"

She shook her head. His touch set little pulses in her throat hammering, the blood in her veins leaping, her body tingling with a fiery quality of life she never before had felt. He had told Jim that he intended to marry her! She looked up.

"I told you that I was engaged to Jim Armstrong. I wasn't. I don't love him a bit." Was that her voice, so pure, warm, and throbbing, or was another girl speaking?

For an instant his eyes flamed with amazement; then he crushed her to him savagely.

"Is that true? What a place to tell me! I can't—" He bent his head.

"Rod! Rod! Not here! Not—" Color rushed back to his face.

"Think I was going to kiss you? Didn't I promise I wouldn't until—" A hand fell on his arm. A prosperous young farmer asked diffidently:

"Dance with me, Miss Schuyler?"

"With a look which set Prue's heart clattering, Gerard relinquished her."

With the breathless sense that she was walking over a hot not slumbering volcano, Prudence laughed and chatted with her partner when the music stopped. Mrs. Walter Gerard, in the latest in platinum metallic hairdressing and a smart black frock, bore down upon her.

"Dear Miss Schuyler, you are ravishing in that frosted green. It brings out your high color marvelously. You've been so kind to my darling daughter. She has a fascinating uncle, hasn't she?"

To Prue's indignant fancy the last sentence seemed to ring through the room as if magnificently amplified. Her response, she could not have told what it was, shook with anger. Almost she sympathized with Walter Gerard. How could a man live with a winking woman? She turned on her heel almost into the arms of Armstrong.

"What dastardly deed are you contemplating?" he demanded, as gaily as if the conversation in the sun room never had taken place. "Your eyes are spitting sparks, you look mad as a batter."

"This is some party. Rod is doing himself proud. He and Jean are distributing gifts. He sent me to look after you. Come on, let's eat."

The middle of the long refectory table was banked with red roses; the supper was as varied and delectable as a noted caterer knew how to serve it. The guests' eyes were wide with admiration, their cheeks pink with repletion. Perched on one of the wide window sills, Prudence pretended to eat.

"How is the lumbering coming, Jim?"

"It's a cinch. The two men who deserted to Calloway slunk back and asked for a job. We took one, but the crew rode Kuskiko out of town."

"Why?"

"He dumped the truck of liquor."

"I suppose he was doing the dirty work of someone higher up."

"Of course—but he tried to knife Rod. That gets you, doesn't it? Here, drink this punch. It will bring your color back. Don't care much for old Rod, do you?"

"Who are you to try to probe the secrets of a maiden's heart?" Her eyes lost their laughter. "How is Calloway?"

"Better. He has made public confession that he was solely responsible for dumping that load of liquor in front of the cattle barn and that he will pay the bills. He did it to get even with Rod. When he found out that he was wrong—"

"He is such a just man," Prudence interpolated crisply.

"He is doing his darndest to be one now. He diverted the girder which would have finished Rod. I had turned away and didn't see it coming."

Prudence shivered. "That's the worst of the horrors of that lurid night. Oh, let's not think of it. I must find the Puffers. They probably want to go home."

As Prudence came down the broad stairs in her green velvet wrap with its broad pink collar, Rodney Gerard was waiting.

"Going? My party has been a knock-out, hasn't it?" The blue of his eyes was black, a hint of passion underlay the laughter in his voice.

"I don't like to talk about myself, but," Prue flouted gaily. If only her heart would stop thumping, she wished wildly. "You have immortalized yourself. Good-night."

She could feel the throb of his fingertips as he held the hand she offered.

"Are you sure Si is waiting? Then I will leave you and speed my other guests."

"He didn't say good-night!" Prudence told herself over and over, as she squeezed in beside Mrs. Puffer on the back seat of the automobile.

"Foolish for your brother to drive home alone," Si protested, as he started the car. "Whatta mean is, he might have come along with us. But perhaps there wouldn't be room. I'm always forgettin'. Mother, that you're not so silly as you were in the days when you and I went to the circus."

"The circus? That reminds me, what happened to Milly Gooch?" Prudence inquired.

"Mrs. Si drew a long, troubled breath. "She went to pieces the night of the fire, dearie. She had hysterics hanging on to Roddy Gerard—guess if folks hadn't been scared to death thinking where those flames might go there would have been some whispering."

"Wouldn't have lasted, Mother. Len Calloway's confession brought out the whole story of how Roddy helped her. Walt Gerard had better not set his foot in the village or he'll be tarred and feathered."

"Here we are at your door, Miss Prudence."

Prudence lingered outside the red brick house. Moonlight silvered the dormers. How low the stars seemed! They were like gold dust spangling indigo velvet.

David was standing before the fire, an arm on the evergreen-banked mantel, when she entered the living room. He smiled as he met her eyes. Thank heaven, he could smile.

"I'll call this a day," he said. "It is so long since I have stepped out to an evening festivity that I am tired."

"Oh, I thought we would talk it over before the fire, David. That's half the fun of a party." She slipped her hand under his arm and laid her cheek against his sleeve. "Of course you are tired, dear. Go to bed. I will look up."

"I want to be full of pep tomorrow. Gerard is having a big tree for the crew at the bunk-house, sort of a house warming." His arm tightened about her shoulders. "No matter how dark and problem-lagged the path, Prue, you bring life and gaiety and courage in your train."

"Why, Dave?"

Prudence hid her quivering lips against his shoulder. His praise brought her heart to her throat. He laid his hand tenderly on her ruddy hair.

"Didn't expect your staid old brother to go sentimental, did you?" He laughed. "Well, that's my story and I stick to it. You're stunning in that frock, Prue. Good-night, dear."

"Good-night, good-night, beloved," she hummed in a husky undertone as she watched him cross the room.

She started to bank the fire, threw on a log instead. She was wide awake, she couldn't sleep if she went to bed. She curled up in the wing chair. Why hadn't Rodney said good-night? Perhaps just as she had discovered that she adored him, he didn't like her any more. Why should he? She had been bitter and hateful. Now that love for him had slipped into her heart and taken absolute possession, it had given life a new value, given her a new insight into her own needs and shortcomings.

A vine outside tapped icy fingers against a window. A shutter rattled eerily. The fire purred. Her thoughts raced on and on. The banjo clock wheezed and ponderously struck the hour.

Prudence counted. Midnight. How still the world was! What would old Santa say if he caught her sitting up for him? Silly, what a kid she was! Perhaps that was the reason Rodney didn't like her any more—he—Someone was watching her! Who had come in? She glanced furtively at the long mirror. Her heart stopped. Rodney!

He didn't move. Was he real? Her fascinated eyes clung to his in the mirror. How he had changed since the day she had plunged into his arms in the barn! Determination and the will to grapple obstacles had remodeled his mouth; where it had been sensitive and mobile, it now set in a grim line. She had thought it too boyish. Now its sternness was like a knife in her heart; she didn't want life to hurt him, she couldn't bear it. Was she partly responsible? What would his mother think of the change if she knew? He moved, and the spell was broken.

"Merry Christmas, Prue of Prosperity farm!"

She stood up and caught at the back of the wing chair. The guarded ardor of his eyes took her breath; his mouth was no longer stern, it was young again.

"Merry Christmas, Rodney."

"Don't look at the clock. This isn't late for the night before Christmas. Had to get the collar for the kitten. I've left him in a basket in the hall. Planned to put him in Jean's stocking in the morning. Dave okayed my coming."

Was that why her brother had been too tired to stay downstairs? The light in the eyes watching her seemed to get in the way of her breath. She proposed eagerly:

"Come into the shop. The collar is ready. I—I—thought perhaps you had forgotten it."

"Oh, yes?" he responded enigmatically, and followed her with the rustling basket in his hand. Prudence picked up the collar from the bench.

"Take the kitten out and hold him tight while I put it on. There! Do you like it?"

"It's great!" With the squirming kitten clutched in one arm, Rodney seized her hand and held it against his lips.

"Darling, did you think I would go through this night without a show-down with you? I kept away after that dance. I didn't dare trust myself. Why did you tell me you were engaged to Jim Armstrong? Why—"

The kitten squirmed and clawed and jumped. He sprang to the back of a chair. Contracted to a black ball. With a bound landed on the high top of the bookcase. His green eyes turned ruby red as he peered over the edge. The man and girl stared back at him.

"Barn! Stop laughing Rodney Gerard, you'll waken Dave and bring Jane Mack down on the double-quick for another burglar," Prudence warned in a hoarse whisper.

"Get that cat in the corner and poke the kitten down. The black imp! Perhaps you can reach him if you stand on something."

Gerard balanced precariously on the arm of a chair and poked vigorous ly. At each thrust the quarry retreated. At the imminent risk of breaking his neck—if not the kitten's—Gerard lunged with the cane.

"What the dickens is going on here?" David Schuyler demanded from the threshold, as he knotted the cord of his broadcreeper dressing gown. Jane Mack, still in her glittering black frock, peered over his shoulder. Gerard jumped to the floor.

"That snooty kitten walked out on us."

"Oh, was that it? Macky and I thought you had corrupted her burglar at last."

Jane Mack twisted gnarled hands. "I was the real burglar, Prue," said Rodney. "I had asked Miss Mack to get the emerald and diamonds for me because—"

Jane Mack eagerly interrupted him. "Mr. Rodney didn't want you to know he had them. I sneaked 'em from the safe that morning you caught us three coming out of this room. Mr. David knew about it. Every time you took out those packages I nearly lost my mind for fear you would miss the emerald. Finally I couldn't stand the strain any longer, so I just worked up that yell and burglar story, to account for them not being there."

David Schuyler slipped his hand under Jane Mack's arm. "Come on, they don't need us, Macky. Gerard is the only one who can explain." He looked back and smiled as he crossed the threshold. Prudence waited till the voices on the stairs were still, before she asked:

"Why did you want those stones?"

Rodney Gerard held out his hand. On the palm glittered a ring.

"Grandmother's emerald! Set in my design! What marvelous baguettes! Why did you do it?"

"Is it splashy enough? You said you wanted the stones set, didn't you, —Gorgeous? I would like all my life to give you what you want. You know I love you, don't you? You know that I've been mad about you from the moment I held you in my arms in the barn. Why did you tell me you were engaged to Jim?"

He dropped the ring to the bench and caught her shoulders. "Don't turn away. We'll fight it out if I stay here all night. Answer my question."

"I didn't want to love you."

"Why—because of Milly Gooch? Calloway told me that he had poisoned your mind against me. There was not a shred of truth—"

"Please—please don't tell me that. I know it. In my heart I have always known it."

The whiteness of his face frightened her. His ardent eyes confused her. She touched the ring.

"Now that the emerald is set, what are you going to do with it?"

Color rushed back into his face, youth and gaiety and laughter to his lips.

"Watch me, Gorgeous. Just watch me while I make my wish come true."

Gerard left hand and slipped the ring on the third finger.

"All right with you? This means marriage, you know—for always."

"For always," she whispered.

He looked at her without speaking. His eyes seemed to draw her heart from her breast. She pressed her cheek against the gardenia on his coat, and challenged with unsteady gaiety:

"Something tells me that you are letting that silly promise—"

He crushed her so close in his arms that she had barely breath left to add: "Don't you usually kiss a lady when you ask her to marry you? Perhaps, though, it isn't being done—perhaps—Rod!"

The quickly smothered cry, half laugh, half sob, roused the dozing kitten. He peered over the top of the bookcase, yawned, sneezed, mewed ingratiatingly. As neither girl nor man looked up, he jumped to the high back of a chair. Always with watchful green eyes on the two humans by the bench, the amber pendant on the silver collar glowing, he proceeded to remove the dust from his sleek black paws.

[THE END.]

First Butter-Makers

Butter is one of the boons bestowed by accident upon the world. The story goes that, long ago, Arabs used to carry sour milk in leather bags with them on their journeys across the desert. They traveled by camel, and the movement of this beast is worse than that of many ships. The result was that the milk was converted into butter, which was first used as a lotion for the skin. When the demand grew, the bags of milk were tied to swift horses which were made to gallop about for some hours. Finally came the first churn, and butter-making became an industry.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

The Word "Itasca"

Itasca is a coined word, invented from the two Latin words veritas and caput. The inventor took the last four letters of veritas and the first two of caput, making Itasca. Veritas caput means true head. Lake Itasca was considered the true head or source of the Mississippi river.

FILM'S VALUE, IN RECORD OF LIFE, IS BEYOND PRICE

When a race or tribe dies out, the record of its habits often dies with it. There may be left buildings or pottery or drawings, if not writings, from which archeologists can piece together some picture of what these lost peoples were like in their daily life. But the picture is incomplete, perhaps fragmentary. The lost races remain remote and unreal. The archeologist is now to find a new ally in the film—or, rather, archeologists in days to come will find themselves served by films made in our time of peoples who are now disappearing and who will soon be beyond record. The congress of anthropologists which has just been meeting in London has decided to set up a permanent committee to supervise the "film documentation" of races which are in danger of dying out. The committee will have two main duties. First, it will try to bring together what materials of the kind already exist—often, as they say, "in the most unlikely places, news reels, tropical films, etc." as a sort of central film reference library. The second duty is to send out expeditions to places where the native inhabitants are in danger of disappearing or of being absorbed in other groups, or to advise travelers visiting such places on the way to make a film record of scientific value. One must not expect too much from the idea, attractive as it is, of sending out special expeditions in search of suitable material. The committee's resources will no doubt be small, and it might vitiate the scientific value of the pictures taken if they had to pay for them themselves by sale for popular exhibition. But there is sound work to be done on less exacting lines. One might add the suggestion that it is not only the manners of vanishing peoples which should be recorded but the many vanishing customs of peoples whose survival depends on their adapting themselves to new ways of life.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

Little Girl's Face Inflamed by Psoriasis

Healed by Cuticura

"My little girl's face was so inflamed that her eyes were swollen almost shut. The trouble was diagnosed as psoriasis. She scratched night and day and was not able to obtain rest. The scratching aggravated the trouble and each finger tip was red and swollen with infection. She became so emaciated that she was very pathetic looking."

"After three months' suffering I recalled the Cuticura treatment used by my mother. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and used them according to directions. The first treatment brought relief and she is now healed." (Signed) Mrs. Marie T. Johnson, 4720 Ames Ave., Omaha, Neb., March 14, 1934.

Body Needs Supply of Salts

When Planning Meals, It Must Be Remembered That Phosphorus, Working With Calcium, Provides the Material Required.

Phosphorus is one of the three minerals for which we must take most thought when planning meals. Phosphorus works with calcium to supply the salt which makes the bones and teeth strong and sturdy.

These two minerals are so inter-twined that it is not only necessary to have a full quota of each, but to have each in such a proportion that it balances the other. In the absence of this the skeleton of the body may grow normal in size but not in strength, and the consequence of this lack is bowed legs and other bone deformities.

Phosphorus is also a necessary contribution to every cell in the body, but is especially important in the nerve cells. Perhaps this is what led to the ancient superstition that phosphorus stimulated the brain. It is, however, a factor in the utilization of food and in maintaining the neutrality of the blood stream. By weight we need about twice as much phosphorus as calcium. Children need a large supply of both of these minerals, of course, because of demand upon food to build new structure. A mother during the month before the birth of the child, and while she is nursing him, will also need an extra supply. If this is not supplied she may show the effect of the lack through the breaking down of her teeth. If, for any reason, she cannot take plenty of food rich in these minerals, she may take certain salts which are more or less effective.

The foods which supply phosphorus most liberally are milk, cheese, eggs, vegetables, nuts, some of the fruits, and whole cereals. All but the latter are sources of calcium to a greater or less extent. Among vegetables, navy beans, carrots, lentils and sweet potatoes are high. Among fruits we find peaches, bananas, grapefruit, oranges, pineapple, prunes and berries at the head of the list.

The quality of minerals in foods is not affected to any large extent by cooking. If the proper methods are used. One of the reasons for cooking vegetables in very little water is to preserve the mineral content which may be partly drawn out into the liquid. A small amount may be lost by the heating of milk during pasteurization, but the amount is negligible if the daily ration of milk is plentiful.

A shortage of either calcium or phosphorus, a poor balance between them or the lack of vitamin D, which has the property of stimulating the deposit of these minerals in the bones, may result in rickets, mild or acute. A mild form of rickets is not uncommon among children, while acute rickets attack undernourished children, especially those who are not exposed to the sun. Children in families of the low-income class, who have come from the tropics, are more subject to this disease than are other children in New York.

Sometimes adults suffer from the results of milk rickets in childhood. The bones of a foot, for instance, sometimes break down in later life. As in the case of many other diet deficiencies, effect of a less than adequate supply of phosphorus as well as of calcium and vitamin D do not always show at the moment. In childhood the foundations of health are built.

Blanc Mange.

3 cups milk
1/2 cup cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Scald two and one-half cups milk milk, add remaining cold milk to cornstarch, stir to smooth paste and add to hot milk stirring constantly. Cover and cook over hot water fifteen to twenty minutes. Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt, and stir into hot mixture. Cook five minutes, remove from fire and stir in vanilla and fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into one large or six small molds and chill. Serve with whipped cream.

Danish Bean Soup.

1 cup navy beans
4 cups water
1 cup celery, chopped
2 tablespoons onions, chopped
2 smoked sausages
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons sugar

Wash beans and soak overnight with three cups of cold water. Put on to cook in water in which they have been soaked. Add celery, onion and one cupful of water and cook until beans are done. Put through coarse sieve or potato ricer. Cook sausages in hot water for ten minutes, drain, slice and add to soup. Add seasonings and cook ten minutes.

Her Sympathies

In the old days the general public was allowed at executions, nor were executions the refined art of today. There is a story told about a French youth who had attempted the life of a king, back in 1757, and sentenced to be torn apart by horses. One of the fine ladies present had her sensibilities aroused by the difficulty which the horses had in tearing their victim to pieces. "Oh, the poor horses," she said, "how sorry I am for them!"

LOCAL AND PERSONAL EVENTS

Mrs. J. P. Conroy and family of Norfolk, Va., are now making their home at 5057 Long Branch avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Decker of South Gate, Los Angeles, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Frei at 4709 Orchard avenue.

The ladies of Trinity Episcopal guild will hold a food sale at the Strand Radio store on Saturday morning, January 26.

The scheduled Founder's Day meeting of Point Loma PTA on Feb. 12, has been changed from an afternoon meeting to an evening, family dinner.

In the applications for marriage licenses on county records Tuesday appear the names of Joe Raymond, 56, of Portland, and Margaret Riley, 51, of Ocean Beach.

Quite a force of men and trucks have been busy this week in the 4600 block on Newport avenue filling in underneath the street where recent rains have washed out the soil beneath.

Mrs. Anna Graisy of Tacoma, Washington, arrived Wednesday in Ocean Beach, expecting to make her home for a time with her brother, J. W. Brennan and Mrs. Brennan at Camp Comfort, 5035 Narragansett.

A food sale to be given for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church will be held at the Ocean Beach Hardware store on Newport Ave., on Saturday, January 19. The committee in charge being Mrs. J. McCaffrey, Mrs. W. Madigan, Mrs. D. Howard and Mrs. T. Kyle.

The Iowa State society in its meeting Tuesday evening elected Myron Insko of 4565 Brighton avenue as its new president. The next meeting of this society will be in the chapel of Goodwill Industries at 7:30 p. m., January 29th. All former Iowans and their friends will be made welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Jules Garnier of 4959 Brighton avenue suffered a stroke of paralysis the first part of the month as a result of which she was, last Saturday, taken to the county hospital for treatment. The attack first came in the left arm and shoulder but later extended to the entire side of her body, it is said. Mrs. Garnier is age 81 and has been a resident for a long time at Ocean Beach, seen every day with her husband Jules, who is 83, on their walk through our business section and down to the beach. The old folks are familiar figures to most of us and we have missed them since Mrs. Garnier was stricken.

LOCAL GIRL SWIMMER JOINS L.A. ATHLETIC CLUB

(San Diego Union)
Florence Chadwick, one of the outstanding young swimmers of San Diego, has joined the Los Angeles Athletic club aquatic team.
Miss Chadwick, competing unattached here for more than a year, decided to join forces with the northern club in the hope of making the team which will go to the national outdoor events in New York.
She will swim her first race under the new colors in the north Jan. 17. Retaining her residence here, Miss Chadwick will compete in San Diego County A. A. U. championship events.

Last week's oddity was fresh tomatoes from Cuba in the stores and home grown ones served at Peabody's restaurant.

P. M. Burrows was this week granted permit for the construction of a $300 addition for F. A. Forsberg of 4486 Del Monte avenue.

Mrs. Anna A. Davis, 1821 Cable street has enjoyed a visit with her family in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Davis accompanied her home.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Taggart of Hillsboro, Oregon, are making their home here with their daughter Mrs. M. C. Picklesimer, 4915 Del Monte.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. McCabe of New Madison, Ohio, and Sylvester McCabe, wife and daughter of Trenton, Ohio, left Saturday after a two weeks visit here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. McCabe, 4860 Narragansett avenue.

The "Good Cheer" program given over KFSD, Thursday morning, was indeed very interesting and instructive. Rev. Myron Insko was the speaker giving his listeners food for thought in a desire for ambition and a willingness to be useful in our daily life.

Mrs. Morris Fried returned Wednesday evening from a several weeks business trip to Salt Lake City and southeastern Idaho. Mrs. Fried reports Utah and the intermountain section in a prosperous condition according to the report of most business people she came in contact.

Fred Varney of Twin Falls, Idaho, left Saturday for San Francisco and his home after several days visit in Ocean Beach at the residence of his brother, Chas. Varney and family. Fred Varney has been a confectioner at Twin Falls for many years and seen southern Idaho grow from a desert section into one of especial fertility under modern irrigation systems.

Mrs. Frances Neill was a most interesting speaker at the January 10th meeting of the Ocean Beach Woman's club and the members took part in the program by reading poems from the pen of Sara Teasdale as Mrs. Neill had selected them. Miss Marjorie Williams, a new comer at the beach, gave some lovely musical readings, after this tea was served. These meetings are well worth attending and members should put forth an effort to come.

HOLDRIDGE HOME, SCENE OF PARTY FOR BRIDE ELECT

Mrs. Paul James Driscoll of Indio entertained Monday evening in the home of Mrs. I. A. Holdridge, 2143 Bacon street. The affair complimented Miss Wane Randolph, bride-elect. Mrs. Driscoll will be remembered here as Miss Sylvia Atkinson. The wedding of Miss Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Randolph and niece of Mrs. I. A. Holdridge and Norman E. Heft, son of Fred Heft of Minneapolis will be solemnized at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening in the home of the bride's parents, 341 Twenty-first street. Guests invited include Mesdames O. W. Scruver, Blanche English, Richard Dority, Sherman Adamson, Earl Haas, H. M. Bowman, Leslie Wilson, Louis Linville, Frank Moriot, Dorthe Casteen, Herbert Rippee, Loretta Randolph, Misses Goldie Wood, Mildred Scroner, Frances Siefert, Louise Averell, Betty Averell, Peggy Wood, Frances Lanfer and Phillis Paxton.

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

The students of the Warren-Walker school have been keenly interested in a book entitled "The Zoo" by Mary Lewis. The stories are read aloud and followed by discussions and personal observation of animals. The study has been correlated with the art course. A trip to the zoo is planned in the near future.

The kindergarten class has completed making a miniature stage and moving picture screen. The students have named it "The Little Theater." They have made their own scenes illustrating the story of "The Three Little Pigs," and it has proven to be a great enjoyment to all.

TALKS ON OLD TIMES AT THE POINT LOMA ASSEMBLY

Members of the Point Loma assembly enjoyed a delightful evening when the club as a whole met at the clubhouse Thursday, January 10.

After a potluck supper, highly interesting, informal talks on old times were given by early residents of the Point.

Dwain Pittsford gave several tap dances which were followed by old time dancing by members of the assembly and guests.

Dr. Lewis Chapelle, violinist, and Mr. Edward Wickern, pianist, added greatly to the pleasure of the evening with their music.

NATIVE SAN DIEGO NURSE EXPIRES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Lucretia Koop Hyatt, 52 a native of San Diego, died Thursday, Jan. 10, in Mercy hospital.

Mrs. Hyatt was a registered nurse, having served in St. Vincent's hospital in Los Angeles, and in the Agnew and Mercy hospitals of San Diego.

In recent years, she had traveled in the Orient with her husband, William R. Hyatt, U. S. N., retired. Also surviving are two sisters, Adele Koop, 3952 Eagle street and Mrs. O. R. Reed; also a brother, George Koop, San Diego.

The rosary was recited at 7:30 Friday evening at the family residence, 4770 Lotus street. Requiem mass was celebrated in Sacred Heart church of Ocean Beach Saturday at 9 a. m.

LOTUS CIRCLE FOR CHILDREN

A Theosophical Lotus circle for children is conducted under the auspices of the Ocean Beach lodge and club, every Sunday morning at 10:30 a. m., in the American Legion hall on Abbott street. All who are interested are welcome.

THE MYSTERY OF MAN'S CONSTITUTION

Nearly every person recognizes that he has at least two natures—a higher and a lower, but there are many degrees between the man of flesh and the god. The present personality with its limitations and inner conflicts is one of these.

At the special meeting of the Ocean Beach Theosophical club on Thursday evening, January 24, at 7:30 p. m., Dr. Arthur A. Beale will be the speaker and he will bring a most inspired message on "that psycho-mental apparatus called Man." All who are interested and have long voiced the question "O Man, what art thou?" will be most welcome and questions are invited.

"He Got A Bargain"

SCENE A fence, with two neighbors, one on each side, exchanging the usual daily gossip.

JOHN Hi, Steve! I sold my house today. Got just what I asked too. Is that a break or is it! We're going to build our new house up on the hill and will move out as soon as that is finished. The wife and kids are tickled to death.

STEVE Well, you lucky stiff! I haven't even had a tumble on my house. Jen says a lot of people who look like house-hunters drive by and look over the place, but nobody stops. My house is as good as yours, too. Built at the same time, cost just as much and everything. Boy I'm getting discouraged.

JOHN I know what's wrong old fellow. I don't like to say "I told you so," but do you recall that little argument we had about paint two years ago? You insisted on buying bargain stuff and just look at your house now! I know you thought I was a sucker to pay a fair price for Sherwin-Williams Pure Paint, but look at my house today. Just as spick and span as the day it was painted, and that's what attracted the people I sold to.

STEVE I take it all back, John. I was the sucker! Never again.

Steve came in next day and bought Sherwin-Williams Pure Paint for his house, had it painted and has had several prospective buyers. He will be John's neighbor on the hill.
